This is the standing injunction to a large family of steady and affectionate children, of a "Friend" mother, whom we know, and we regard it as one of the most important lessons which childhood can learn. Many a young man would have been saved from the halter had he loarned in his father's house how to "make himself useful" under all the circumstances of life.

And well do wa know, that many a girl with a good heart has gone down to an early grave of infamy, from being brought up, by a false kindness, without the knowledge of how she was to "make herself useful" in the various changes and adversities of life. Very many girls, in this drear winter weather, go to bed hungry, and rise to hover around stinted tires, and shiver all day in scanty clothing, wearing the wrinkles of sadness and casts on faces yet in their teems willing. care on faces yet in their teens, willing enough to work—and abundant work to do, with liberal pay, in luxurious man-sions, whose rich occupants would count sions, whose rich occupants would count it a "fortunate thing" to find a person it a "fortunate thing" to find a person suited to the place.

Why, then, are the doors of all our charities besieged and daily thronged? and why does the pitful appeal strike the ear of the pedestrian in his early walk or noonday promenade, or nightly visit to the party, the lecture, the concert or the opera?

It is simply because these starving, freezing girls were not brought up to be useful, were not taught, by careless or useful, were not taught, by careless or over indulgent mothers, how they might command situations. The incessant and earnest cry of thousands of almost despairing housekeepers, is for competent "help," to cook, to nurse, to sew; for chamber work or for waiting. Within twenty-four hours, 2,000, may we not say 10,000 such girls, could find welcome homes in the very best families in New York, at high wages.

But American girls think it degrading to cook, and nurse, and wash, and wait on the table, and their more inexcusable and short-sighted parent confirm them in their views; and the next we hear of them is "starvation." "suicide," premature disease, or a dishonored grave. Let all these, especially those who can leave their families nothing, impress on the minds of their children, day by day, that it is more dishonorable to beg than to work, that it is more criminal to do nothing than to be industrious; that no eming than to be industrious; that no employment is dishonorable which is useful; and that it is not only a disgrace, but a crime to be idle, from feelings of a despicable false pride.—Hall's Journal of Health.

at case Hall, this city, to-day at eleven o'clock.

Mrs. Lucy Stone Blackwell called the Convention to order, and read a circular letter prepared by the committee of which she is chairman, and also a call for this Convention, based on an opinion received in response to that circular letter. The call, with the signatures of residents of twenty-three States and Territories, and the District of Columbia, invited the meeting of a convention of delegates from each State, not exceeding the number of Representatives in Congress, to form an American Woman's Suffrago Association.

form an American Woman's Suffrage Association.

On motion of Mr. Sanborn, of Massachusetts, Judge James B. Bradwell, of Chicago, was chosen temporary chairman, and, on taking the chair, said:

Women and men of America—I thank you for the hohor you have done me in electing me to preside over you. The objects of this meeting have been well stated by Mrs. Stone. I will only add that we have met to form an association that should extend into every State and county from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Gulf to Canada, and I don't know but that some time it will enter over into Canada. An organization that shall effect a change in the laws of the various States where they work oppressively on women.

There is now no doubt that several months ago General Jordon proposed to surrender to the Spanish authorities, not on his own account, but on that of his men from the United States, who were, he said, forced to take the front of battle in all combats. A FATAL AFFRAY. A FATAL AFFRAY.

MEMPHIS, November 24.

A fatal affair occurred near Tiptonsville, Tennessee, on Sunday. A party of masked men went to the house of William Jones, a planter, for the purpose of disarming the negroes working for him.
Jones having an intimation of their coming, determined to resist, as the negroes had been peaceable and well disposed, and made proper means for defense.
When the raiders came, they were met with a destructive fire, which caused them to retreat, leaving one dead and two mortally wounded. The dead one proved to be Robert Dickinson, living across the Kentucky line. His cousin, Robert Beauchamp, died the next forenoon. He said he was misled into the scrape. The excitement the next day was intense.
Officers came and arrested Mr. Jones and six negroes.
Owing to excitement, Mr. Jones was taken to the river, in charge of a Deputy Sheriff, and placed on the steamer Louisville. The Sheriff, with the negroes, started for froy, but on the way the mob attacked the posse, took five of the negroes into the woods and shot them down. The Sheriff, by hard begging, succeeded in saving the life of the other one, who was taken to Troy and put in jail. The excitement in Tipton is immense, and the party who is shot is well known. It is supposed that other blood will be shed, even if the matter is settled.

FIRE ON BOARD THE STEAMER RUBI-(CON-NEARLY A DISASTER. ST. Louis, November 24.

Captain Blake, of the steamer Rubicon, who arrived to-day from Memphis, gives some particulars of the accident to his boat last Saturday. The fire was discovered at two o'clock in the morning, under the pilot house, which, with the upper part of the boat, was in a moment or two all ablaze, burning furiously. The boat immediately headed for shore. The pilot, William Riley, stood to his post until the wheel itself caught fire, nor did he leave it until the boat landed. Meantime Captain Blake and the crew trained a hose and brought three streams of water to bear on the fire. As soon as the boat touched the shore all the passengers, fifty-five in number, twenty-two of whom were women and children, were landed, where they remained until the flames were subdued, when they returned to the boat and she proceeded on her voyage. The fire was supposed to have caught from sparks lodging against the pilot house at the intersection with the hurricane roof. St. Louis, November 24.

POR the benefit of those who are afflicted with consumptive tendencies, we make the following extract from a letter from Rev. Charles A. Roundy, the City Missionary, of Boston:

BOSTON, Massachusetts, February 18, 1869.

MISSES, P. DAVIR & SON-GRAYE: The package of "Allen's Lung Balsam" you sent to me to use among the afflicted poor in my city missionary work, has proved very acceptable and useful. It has gone into several families, and with remarkable effect in every instance.

One woman has been restored from what her physician pronounced consumption, after several months' sickness with cough, great pain in the lungs and prostration, so that she is able now to do housework and assist in the support of her family, and with care and continued use of the Balsam she expects entire restoration.

Another person, a young woman to whom I

A young man to whom I recommended a trial of it, who has had a bad cough and much pain in his lungs for months past, and unable to get good test and sleep, has commenced taking it, and now using the fourth bottle with great benefit. He said to me on a recent visit, he would not do without it. He is hoping, (and reasonably it seems to me,) to be able to resume his work again. Very respectfully, and gratefully yours.

more interesting items for tax payers:

Another case proving the inadequacy of naval paymasters' bonds was discovered to-day. Upon the settlement of the account of an acting assistant paymaster, it was found that his account is $20,000 short, and that he has absconded. His bonds are for $5,000, and his indorsers have been called upon for the money.

The last session of Congress appropriated twenty-five thousand dollars to repair the marine barracks throughout the country. Paymaster Marcy, of the navy, whose accounts have lately been found to be about a hundred thousand dollars of the appropriation for repairs on the Pacific supplies the deficit by another appropriation.

It is found that Marcy's accounts amount to over a million dollars, about a tenth of which has not been accounted for. His bonds amount to twe restive under the public burdens they are compelled to bear, when facts like the foregoing find the light of day. Is it not high time, in view of the extravagance and corruption that characterizes the administration of our public affairs, for a change in the administration of the Government? And if practical free trade contributes to the general welfare of the States, to the prosperity and happiness of the people individually and generally, is it not a strong argument in favor of the removal of the commercial restrictions between foreign Governments? If the principle of protection is sound why should not each State survound its borders with a Chinese wall, and stop the exchange of the productions peculiar to each—stop the intercommerce, now as free as the air we breathe?

The lowest and the Union stronger, commercial results and practice mention made of many distinguished Democrats, whose names will be presented to the State Court. Of course the topic selected for discussion was the condition of affairs in this section, and Mr. Hilliard, in enumerating the grievances of the Southern people, spoke of the swarm of hungry carpetbaggers which had overrun the country since the surrender. Replying to this, General Garfield agreed with Mr. Hilliard in his remarks on this pest, and said that he himself "would rather repentant rebels should hold the offices than carpet-baggers."

"Repentant rebels!" interrupted the Chief Justice. "Why do you wish repentant rebels, General Garfield? What have the rebels done that they should repent? Were they not equally conscientious in their support of the Southern cause as we of the North were in our advocacy of the cause of the Union?"—Augusta Chronicle.

November Fashion Gossin

Le Follet has the following:

The "Tyrolien," so suddenly accepted as la mode, will continue to be worn during the winter. It is made in felt, in black or dark colors. Dark green, among other somber shades, is in good taste. The crown is high, and rather pointed. The trimmings are velvet, ribbons, jet and teathers. There are two or three narrow rows of velvet round the crown to match the color of the felt. If trimmed with ribbon it should be wide, crossed or tied behind, with the ends in small pans fringed. This style is suitable only for the young, to whom it gives a picturesque air.

de campagne begin to assimilate, and in the mixed form are not wanting in ele gance.

A black velvet hat, with trimming of lace and drapery of velvet, thrown back in the style of the fisherman's cap, with a deep, bright-colored flower placed over the ear, is very becoming. A black netscarf, half covering the hair, tied under the chin and rolled round the throat, gives it an oriental appearance, and is either hat or visiting bonnet.

Young ladies wear also straw hats, the crown being entirely covered with velvet or blue mauve, or green moire. The edges are plain straw. A bow with long ends is placed behind to fall over the hair.

The length of the rolled veils should be rather more than three yards of Donna Maria gauze. They are not drawn over the lace, but turned round the hat and throat. The name "Hortense" has been given to this style of veil, from a portrait of that Queen, who is drawn with one of white gauze encircling the face and throat. The sailor's hat has simply a ribbon round the crown. They are of black or white straw.

The "Watteau" is a small round hat placed very forward over the brow. The trimming for this hat must be put quite at the back, which gives it a very raised appearance.

The toque is still very fashionably pearance.

The toque is still very fashionably edged with black velvet. Two long ostrich feathers, crossed, fall over the chig-

The style of arranging the hair is essential, in order that the different forms of hats should preserve their individuality. The chignon is raised on the head, the rest of the hair falls on the neck in plaits or in a net. Curls accompany all styles of coiffure, and are either short at the ends of the bandeau, or quite long, falling over the shoulders.

Little girls, with long, thick hair, have it in simplo plaits hanging down the back. Only very young children wear the hair waved behind, and drawn up from the forehead on each side, and tied with a bow on the summit of the head.

The redingote resembles the robe "Princes;" that is to say, without a seam at the waist. The revers on the body form a sailor collar, open in front and joining half way down the chest; it then widens, and makes a turned-back revers on the skirt.

The color of the revers is blue or gold color, to suit the dress. Blases of the same trim the arm-hole and the top of the founce on the skirt and bottom of the redingote and broad open cuffs, through which passes the broad lace of the white under-sleeve.

White serge and white cachemire are used for robes de chambre, fitting to the figure and wadded, have quilted satin revers.

RIGHT OF PRIVATE JUDGMENT.

How many illuminations of celestial origin come to all in sincere hours! Are there inspirations to be subjected to the authority of any tribunal! All expressions of will by bodies and individuals that others should think as they do is tyranny. Numbers have no more right than a single person to enforce a doctrine. They are each and all fallible, and are bound to a special caution lest they should exert an influence over each other unfriendly to impartiality. A community so bound to an opinion as to abandon a man, and to be unjust to his character, who questions it, is a prosecutor as much as if it used legal penalties.

We have expressed our belief that the Cardiff giant was a fragment of the fa-mous collection of Artemus Ward. On mous collection of Artemus Ward. On reterring to the works of that famous "scientist," we find that he locates the loss of one of his statues at Utica instead of Syracuse. Analit is evident from his description of the yeung man and the verdict of "arson in the third degree," that Mr. Ward referred to a scion "of one of the first families of Utiky" and to an Oneida county jury. It is only such that are such. Here is Artemus' account of the affair, which is humbly submitted to the Regents of the University as a solution of the gypsum enigma that evidently so distresses them:

"In the fall of 1856 I showed my show in Utiky, a truly great sitty in the State of New York.

"The people gave me a cordyal recepshun. The press was loud in her praises.

atical story is told of Minister Washburne's connection with the purchase of arms for Lopez. It is stated that Lopez entrusted $10,000 to Mr. Washburne with the understanding that Washburne on coming or sending to the United States, was to obtain specimens of the different kinds of arms manufactured in this country, and to have them forwarded to Lopez. This was about a year before the war between Brazil and Paraguay. Lopez waited and waited, but nothing was heard of the warlike specimens from the United States. Washburne informed Lopez that he had purchased the required specimens, but on learning of their non-arrival wrote to his agent in New York, and was informed, as he stated in his testimony before the committee, that the export of arms was prevented by our Government under a law which prohibited the exporting of warlike arms during our domestic war.

ernment under a law which proninted the exporting of warlike arms during our domestic war.

Washburne, therefore, wrote to the State Department, asking that the prohibition be removed as to the arms intended for President Lopez. According to Washburne the exportation was finally allowed, but when the arms reached Buenos Ayres they were seized by the authorities there. This is Mr. Washburne's explauation, which, however, is doubted by some people. Lopez is reported to have told Minister McMahon that his cause suffered incalculable injury by reason of the failure of these arms to reach Paraguay before the commencement of the Brazilian hostilities. Had they arrived in time Lopez would not have been compelled to depend upon flint lock muskets, and the condition of existing affairs might be very different. Lopez, therefore, regards the blundering or neglect of Washburne as one of the principal causes of the protracted hostilities, and has, naturally, no very friendly disposition towards the author of his embarrassments.

Love's trials and tribulations are curiously exemplified in the history of Ann Payne, a maiden of fifty-five, who has been figuring as plaintiff in a breach of promise suit before the London Court of Exchequer. Ann is the daughter of a shoemaker and a Postmistress, and has been on the anxious seat for nineteen years. In 1850 she was living next door to one James Smith, who, attracted by her comely appearance, asked her if she would have him. Ann said "Yes," he kissed her, and that was all there was of it. The courtship progressed swimming by for three years. Smith accustomed himself to sitting up late o'nights, gave liberally from his stock of eggs and poultry, and generally played the part of a devoted lover. Finally, his ardor began to her solicitations. With a perseverance worthy of a better cause, she has been firing away at him ever since, until, her courage failing, she brought a suit for breach of promise, laying damages at five it thousand dollars. The plaintiff is seventy-five years old, and, in consideration of his probable worthlessness as a husband, the jury brought in a verdict for only two undred and fifty dollars, with which she xpressed herself satisfied.

These tools had mostly been used for mining purposes, as they were found in the vicinity of mines of gold, silver, iron, lead and coal, all of which were found in the country explored, and all of which gave evidence of having been worked. These mines are estimated to be of great value, and a source of almost inexhaustible wealth to the country. Here is a story of Yankee invention: Isaac S. Geer, of Liabon, Connecticut, wanted to extend a water pipe through an underdrain several feet below the surface, but how to get the pipe through without taking up the drain was the difficulty to be surmounted. After studying upon it for a while, Mr. Geer hit upon this admirable plan: He opened the lower end of the drain, caught a cat and stracked a small cord to her leg, then put her into the upper end and gave a most unearthly "coat!" and prissy are peared at the opposite end as quick as her legs could carry her. The pipe was drawn through the drain by means of the line, and Mr. Geer had the satisfaction of saving ten dollars by the operation.

The Suez Canal—Its History.

The New York Herald furnishes the following review of the great undertaking which has been inaugurated in the presence of rulers and princes of nations which had ne existence when, 1,400 years before the christian era, King Setl's "navies" threw up the first spadeful of earth for the oline marked out for the original isthmus of Suez Canal. The period theuce till now includes a space of 3,000 years. The work done is colossal in its character, but the leading incidents are few, and their resital may be brief.

The idea of forming a through water communication across the Isthmus of Sacz was familiar to the Egyptians under the Pharaohs, though with ends in view widely different from those with which the nineteenth century promoters of the undertakers have been animated. In those days the whole of the lakes which The Suez Canal-Its History tudertakers have been animated. In those days the whole of the lakes which ite across the isthinus were flooded. Nothing required to be done save to dig trenches between each, and so connect them. King Seti I commenced the enterprise, and a thousand years later (326 B C.) Nechas worked to death 120,000 man in renewing it. men in renewing it.

men in renewing it.

The Romans and the Arabs, as they successively occupied the country, patched up and extended the cana!; but in a more enlightened age, the Calliph Almansour, being at issue with his subjects in a province through which the canal passed, and hong desirous of starving them into Caljection, destroyed the count by which they were accustomed to receive provisions. This was in the eighth century, and the idea of connecting, the Red Sea with the Mediterranean hept for a thousand years, when it was reawakened in the mind of a man for whom such a work had a peculiar charm. In 1738 Napoleon Bonaparte the First, then serving the French republic as commander of the expedition to Egypt, proposed that a canal, capable of being navigated by sea going ships, should be cut across the Isthmas of Suez; but he was neet by the curious yet time-honored objection that the waters of the Red Sea were not on the same level as those of the Mediterraneau, and that the consequence of patting them into communitation weard be something dreadful. Bonaparts sconted this idea as being contrary to the scientific taws which govern the globe; but he, nevertheless, directed the commission of savants which accompanied the expedition to survey the isthmus with the view of ascertaining the levels of the two seas.

the with the view of ascertaining the evels of the two seas.

The result was astounding. Lissere, an inguier of high standing, who conducted the survey, reported that one seas was higher than the other by several nodes, and the idea of connecting them was thereupon abandoned.

The statement of the Franch enclasers.

The statement of the French engineers, though at first accepted as being the result of a special survey under competent direction, was so directly opposed to the teachings of science, that presently it began to be hinted that there must be a mistake on one side or the other, and it was generally believed that it was more likely to have been committed by the have been committed by the surveyors. In 1830, Lieutenant Wag-horn—to Whose memory a monument has been erected on the banks of the canal — planning the British overland route, re-surveyed the Isth-Caus of Suez, and settled the question by demonstrating an almost perfect equali-ity of level between the two seas. At this time M. de Lesseps was serving his diplomatic apprenticeship in the French Consulate at Cairo, and the laying of the bugbear, which had hitherto prevented engineers from seriously considering that had been been considered to the sides of the project for dividing the engineers from seriously considering both sides of the project for dividing the continents, suggested to his mind the possibility of carrying out the scheme, the felt a powerful "call" to the work, but it was about the scheme. it was plainly more than might b undertaken by a man aged twenty-six years, and but just started in life. M. do Lesseps, however, did not by any means abandon the idea because circumstances happened to make it impractica-ble at the moment. He carried it with him to Burcelona, whither he was shortly him to Burcelona, whither he was shortly after removed, and where he gained great fame by his conduct during the siege of 1842. He kept it before him in too where, in 1848, he further distinguished himself by presuming to differ from his Government on the question of the French occupation of that city, and by honestly avowing his sentiments, and sacrificing his position thereto.

In 1851 the opportunity for which he had long waited arrived. Mahomed Said, the Viceroy of Egypt, invited him to pay a visit 1 Cairo, and one day, while crossing the desert from Alexandria to the Capital, M. de Lesseps opened out his scheme to his Highness. Mahomed was delighted with the fidea, which he was shrewd enough to perceive was fraught with great advantages to Egypt, and pledged himself to support the undertaking by every means in his power. It was in the beginning of November that this conversation took place, and on the this conversation took place, and on the 30th day of the same month M. de Les-right to construct a maratime canal across the 1sthmus of Suez.

M. Lesseps had reached an age at which most men began to think of rest when he commenced the work for which he was born; but if he had been tweaty-five instead of fifty he could not have set about doing it with more ardor. At the outset difficulties were no sooner overcome than others arose. It was necessary to obtain the Sultan's confirmation of the Viceroy's firman, and the Sultan was not greatly disposed to further an enterprise which, whatever became of the original shareholders, could not fail to add to the importance of Egypt—a dependency already too precocious to suit the jealous policy of the Porte. The late Lord Palmerston, possibly foreseeing an ulterior ready too precocious to suit the jealous policy of the Porte. The late Lord L'almerston, possibly foreseeing an ulterior French "annexation" of Egypt, canal and all, set his face against the project, and was supported by those of the British journals, the writers of which in leading articles which M. de Losseps carefully preserved in his desk and gleefully shows to his friends, styled the promoter of the scheme, the "High Priest of the Egyptian Enterprise," and other funny names. Scientific ment demonstrated the impossibility of the undertaking, and even Stephenson lent the weight of his then great authority to crush it. But the energy of M. de Losseps triumphed over all, and in 1855, years after he had definitively taken the matter in hand, the subscription list of the Compagnie Universelle de Canal de Suez was opened on all the Stock Exchanges of Europe. Shares were taken up with encouraging alacrity, and on the 25th of April, 1859, possession was taken, in the name of the Suez Isthmus, washed on one side by the Mediterranean Sea, and on the other by the shallow waters of Lake Menzaleh.

mus, washed on one side by the Mediternanan Sea, and on the other by the shallow waters of Lake Menzaleh.

The first point which the engineers under the direction of M. de Lesseps turned their attention to was the creation of a port for the ships which brought from Europe the machinery and the principal supplies of food for the great army of workmen. There was no choice of site.
The starting point of the canal was fixed, and there must be the port, not with standing the fact that the water was at he time so shallow that nothing bigger than time so shallow that nothing bigger than a barge could approach within half a mile of the beach.

The only thing to be done was to run

The only thing to be done was to run out seaward breakwaters, as described in the different mars, on either side of the space required for the harbor, and to deepen the enclosure. But before this could be done it would be necessary to land cargoes of provisions and of heavy machinery, and how were they to be discharged? Thus: an island was created at the limit to which the ships might approach; Immense cranes were erected thereon, and by their means the imports were transhipped into lighters, which conveyed them to the beach. The building of the break waters was then proceeded with, stones being supplied from the quarry of Gox, near Alexandria; but this course was found to entail great cost and delay, and the men who had made the little island in the Mediterranean determined to make also the stones for the breakwater. They established a manufactory on the seashore, and by an ingenious process moulded, of sand mixed with lime, blocks of clay weighing twenty tons apiece. These being exposed for a due season to the sun and air, became as The Oldest Woman in Delaware.

The Wilmington Commercial of November 15 has the following: Hannah Fennimore was born on the 11th day of December, at Amsterdam, Germany, in the year of our Lord 1761, and will, on the 11th of December, be 108 years old. She removed to this country in the eighth year of her age, and has consequently been in the country of her adoption one hundred years, arriving here seven years before the Declaration of Independence, and when the old bell was sending forth the proclamation of liberty throughout the land and to all the inhabitants thereof, she, in the maiden blush of "sweet sixteen," was living at the mouth of Mantua Creek, in New Jersey, where she was soon afterward wooed and won by Matthew Bigger, a young Revolutionary soldier, whom she married when she was twenty-one years of age, and by whom soldier, whom she married when she was twenty-one years of age, and by whom she had eleven children, the youngest of whom is now ifty-five years old, and the oldest, if now living, would have been eighty five. The is now living with her son, Charles C. Bigger, who, with one exception, is the youngest of her children, and who is sixty-three years of age.

Her husband dying when her youngest child was an infant, she remained a widow a short time, and married a man by the name of Fennimore, with whom the lived until his death, which occurred in 1816, since which she has lived with her son before mentioned.

She is remarkably active, and goes from house to house, calling upon her neighbors, and talking of old times when she was a girl. From present appearances she bids fair to live a number of years yet. hard as granite, and of them are built the breakwaters, which, stretching out into the sea-one a distance of a mile and a half, and the other upward of a mile-

While the breakwaters were being built and the harbor deepened, and a town growing up on the narrow belt of sand, the construction of the canal itself was vigorously pushed on. The course from sea to sea being definitely marked out, the work was simultaneously commenced along the whole line, gangs of men being told off for stations fixed at equi-distances. Machinery of the most ingenious design and upon the vastest scale was introduced, and, with an unlimited supply of hardy workmen, the canal was growing apace, when, in 1862, events occurred which threatened to put an end to the work altogether. Three years earlier, when the Suitan saw the work actually commenced, and perceived from the commenced, and perceived from the character of the men engaged in it that it was very likely to be carried on to the and, he ordered the Viceroy to send away the Frenchmen, and it was only upon the intervention of the Emperor that he with-drey the injunction.

intervention of the Emperor that he withdrew the injunction.

Now, again, in a manner more peremptory than before, he interposed, forbade the Viceroy to permit his fellahs to labor upon the canal, and declared null and void the firman of 1856, which conceded to the company the lands necessary for the works. Before this mandate of his liege lord the Viceroy of Egypt was powerless, the fellahs were withdrawn, and the works came virtually to a standstill. Attempts were made to supply the place of the natives by an importation of European navyies, but under the sun which beats upon the sands of the lathmus, none but of the negro race can do a fair day's digging and live and, till the matter at issue was bettled, the managers wers fain to be content with holding the way already made. Again the Emperor of France came to the resume, and being appointed arbiter, he early in 1864 effected an arrangement by which the works were resumed under pretty nearly the same circumstances as those under which they were carried on previous to the Suitan's intendict. Here ends the record of the exceptional difficulties with which the promoters of the Suz Canal have had to deal. The history of the last five years is simply a chronicle of daily progress, and is best summed up in the statement of the fact that the canal is now ready for opening.

A Free-Trade Museum.

One of the most effective arguments presented to Congress for the repeal of the tax upon cotton wonsisted of two large show cases, containing samples of every variety of cotton known in the world.

These samples had been obtained by a member of the Boston Board of Trade, and were sent to Washington and placed in the lobby of the Senate by a committee of that Board, accompanied by a memorial urging the repeal of the tax. It is believed that the samples had more effect than the memorial, as such evidence could not be gainsaid that the world might procure a supply of cotton elsewhere if our product was heavily taxed. Suffice it to say, the cotton tax was repealed, and new life and vigor were imparted to Southern agriculture, then in a most depressed condition.

May we not take a hint from this, and establish a Free Trade Museum in some pleasant rooms upon Pennsylvania avenue, free to all coverse.

Dreay of Public Virtue

The degeneracy of public words is becoming a conspicuous fact of the times, so much as to afford just grounds of apprehension in regard to the ultimate consequence. We can not doubt that this country is passing through a critical period of its history, in a moral point of view, and almost unconsciously to itself. What mean the frequent defalcations in office, and the breach of trust among men hitherto irreproachable? How is it that so large a proportion of the so-called great roportion of the so-called great ur day are no less remarkable for liant achievements in business their flagrant disregard of the virtues? Is it not true that men das holding good positions in in don 'Change and in our Boards ou are at the same time no petron from the profess to be branded as such profess to be branded as such profess to be governed by a self respect? More than this, ciety in our large cities pervasarful extent, by a wanton lierto irreproachable? How is it that so large a proportion of the so-called great men of our day are no less remarkable for their brilliant achievements in business than for their flagrant disregard of the cardinal virtues? Is it not true that men recognized as holding good positions in society and on 'Change and in our Boards of Direction are at the same time no better than confirmed gamblers and blacklegs, and deserve to be branded as such by all who profess to be governed by a consistent self respect? 'More than this. Is not society in our large cities perva-

We still believe that industry is the only true basis of material prosperity, and that the more easily individual fortunes can be acquired, independently of labor or merit, the more imminent is the danger of wide-spread voluptuousness and libertinism. The more frequently we shall hear of peculations, forgeries, embezzlements, defalcations and sulcides.

No one familiar with the history of the decayed monarchies of the old world can fail to read the prediction of our own fate in their experience, should the demoralization of the present day continue unchecked. So long ago as the year 4004, B. C., it was decreed to mankind, "In the sweat of thy face thou shalt eat bread," and we have not heard that an exception was ever made in favor of Wall street, or any other place.—New York Republican.

The Hog Market.

—The inauguration of the first railway constructed in Wallachia, from Bucharest to Guirgovo, took place in presence of the representatives of the Foreign Powers. The line, which is not quite twenty miles in length, was commenced in 1863, so that the works have progressed at the rate of three and one-third miles per annum. Hurdly like Yankee enterprise!

—A Washington dispatch says: It is understood here to-night that the Union cline in value. The retrograde movement in prices has commenced, and now that the "ice is broken," there is no telling how low they may fall. Packers joyfully anticipate and holders dread a speedy return to reasonable prices. WORTHY OF ATTENTION.

To Dr. Tromas A. Hurley: I hereby certify that I was attacked with the Ague whilst in Vicksburg, Mississippi, and used several popular patent medicines with but temporary relief. On reaching home the disease returned in a worse type, when my medical attendant ordered Quinine in large doses-frequently as high as 60 grains per day—which must have cost me nearly $100. I consulted Dr. Smith of Louisville, and found he prescribed Quinine and Arsenic, combined, which I refused to take, preferring to let the disease take its course. I was almost blowdiess, extremely exhausted, and pronounced with enlarged Liver and Spleen. About this time the advertisement of Hurley's Ague Tonic appeared in a city paper, and I determined to give it a trial. One bottle restored me completely. I would recommend it as preferable to any other tonic before the public. JAMES MARTIN, Engineer.

HURLEY'S STOMACH BITTERS. To James Ruddle & Co., Louisville, Kentucky:

To James Ruddle & Co., Louisville, Kentucky: GENTLEMEN—This is to certify that I have been for years a sufferer, and tried all the tonics I ever heard of or seen advertised, with little or no relief from any of them. I heard your Hurley Bitters highly spoken of, and tried a bottle, with litte faith in it before I commenced, and to my surprise and joy, before I finished one bottle, I felt a great deal better, and firmly believe that on one or two occasions it was the means of saving and prolonging my life. I conscientiously recommend them to all sufferers as the best bitters known. Yours truly, etc.

Dr. Hurley—Sir: My daughter has been atflicted with skin diseases and stiffness of the joints for soveral years. I employed the principal physicians of the city, and they could not cure her. I gave her your Sarsaparilla, not expecting it would do much good, but to my great attonishment she rapidly got well. Had she been taking any other medicine I would not give this certificate; but your Sarsaparilla, the oaly remedy employed, leaves no doubt of its medical qualities, and that it alone cured her.

were passed off, one of which was eighteen inches long.

BLOW M. WILCON-SE: In accordance with your request, I give yea, and through you, the public, the following facts in regard to the afficient of my niece, Annie Lewis, aged sixteen years, of tape worm; About twelve years age the first symptoms of the presence in her system of the monster was discovered. She was always a small, pale and emaciated child, having very little to say. Every remedy the family could hear of was tried effectually, but failed to remove only portions of the worm. Three years she was under the treatment of eminent physicians of Louisville, who used every known remedy, and tried all forts of experiments to dislodge the enemy, but without avail. A remedy prepared by the colebrated Dr. Jayne, of Philadelphia, was also tried, but it, too, failed to effect a cure. The effect of the worm upon her health caused her to become partially blind, and to suffer otherwise to a considerable extent for several years. All hopse of her recovery were given up until I heard of your remedy. It performed an effectual cure in a short time, removing the entire worm, trenty-two feet five inches long. Since that time the patient has gained fesh very fast, now weighing eighty-feur pounds against sizy-four previous to the removal of the meanster. She is new in apparent good health, and is chearful and lively, having fuily recovered her time.

Explosion of a Grindsto One of the largest grindstones at Sink t Co.'s foundry bursted yesterday morn ng, between nine and ten o'clock. A aporary derangement of the govern of the engine caused the stone to revolve with frightful rapidity, and the grinde ing unable to work, stepped away jus before it exploded. The stone was five f n inches in diameter, ten and one half hes thick, and weighed 3,463 pounds ne of the pieces, nearly half of the ston ent through a wall across an alley, an knocked a hole as large as a windo posite wall. Another fragment was own directly upwards through the of, and falling, dropped exactly on the apot from which it started. Strange to say, no one was injured in the least. The affair created great excitement among the employes, and at first it was suppose that one of the hotters had exploded,

Hen. Henry Walker's Lecture. The Senate chamber was filled to its utmost capacity last evening, by an sudi-ence of ladies and gentlemen, brought tonce of ladies and gentlemen, brought to-other by the announcement in the city papers that Hon. Henry Walker would deliver a lecture upon various topics at that time and place. The reputation of Mr. Walker procured for him an audience well qualified to appreciate his discourse, and of which he may well feel

Mr. Walker was speaking in regard to the late war, and was passing a high enmium upon the ladies for their earnest devotion to the cause of the Union. He cited many instances of woman's here ism and self-sacrificing nature, both in eat and modern history, asserting that there was no parallel to that dis played by the ladies of our country a he time of the country's direst need.

As an instance of woman's persever-ance in a cause, he related an anecdote of Lady Bruntfield, wife of a Scottish no who had been taken prisoner and slain by Earl Mowbray. He told, in a most thrilhow she sent one son after another to Paris, there to become thoroughly acquainted with "sword fighting," and then had them challenge and fight Mowbray, that the death of their father might be revenged. Two met her purpose was the same. The third and slayer of his father, and after a long and severe fight, slew him. Then was this model woman and mother happy. His remarks in regard to the many high qualities of the fair sex were repeatedly interrupted by loud and prolonged ap-Next the lecturer spoke in high terms of our school system, impressing upon his hearers the importance of educating heir children, that they might be able to appear to advantage upon the stage of life. He especially urged that the youth of the country should be taught declamation and rhetoric, so that in the future if their country's good called them into public life, they would be able to do hemselves and the glorious cause they represented, justice. He insisted that no one should be allowed to teach in our schools who was not possessed of a thorcharacter above reproach. He recom-mended to the ladies that their reading should consist alone of the Bible and the works of Hannah More. He next said a few words in regard to what is termed "fashion," saying we had too much of it. He gave the ladies a little going over on account of "India-inl evebrows and vermillion cheeks." but was evidently prevented from saying as nuch as he wished on that subject by that innate gallantry and devotion to the fair

Mr. Walker now devoted a few moments to a talk to the young men, many of whom, we are pleased to say, were in the audience. He told them that but a short time would elapse until he and many others, who now were in public life, would pass away to that "bourne whence no traveler returns," and it would devolve upon them, the rising generation, to assume the control of the reins of government. They would have to run the steamboats and railtoads of the country, and they could not over estimate the importance of upon them. He urged them to be virtu ous and stand by the old ship of State as

After the conclusion of his remarks t The Mænnerchor, Harmonia and the the young men, the lecturer, by special request recited Rurns' celebrated no 'Highland Mary." As a recitation, we feel safe in saying it could not be excelled efit at the Academy of Music on Sat- by any one. As we listened to the impas urday afternoon and evening. Of course sioned recitation, it required but a slight every body will go, for White is an uni- stretch of the imagination to place Burns versal favorite with the theater goers of in the speaker's stand, speaking with all the misery of a bereaved heart of his "Highland Mary," whom cruel death had torn from him. The audience was visibly affected during the recitation and loudly encored Mr. Walker upon its conclusion.

An Incompatible Couple Wrangle About a Child—Attempt to Abduct It. Some months ago the wife of Lewis mith, a farmer residing near Clermon eft her husband's roof and took up he sidence with her brother, who lives near Southport, taking their only child with her. After making a number o fruitless attempts to induce his wife return, as a last resort he stole, or obtained possession of the child, and re-fused to return it to its mother unless she vould consent to live with him. After keeping the child several weeks, it be came sick, which fact was communicated city to care for her offspring. Yesterday she succeeded in finding the husband and childat a boarding house on Indiana avenue, and during a temporary absence of the former, she took the child and started for the depot. On the corner of Illinoi street and the avenue she met her hus band, who endeavored to forcibly take ossession of the little one, which attempt was foiled by her screams and cries of murder, attracting the interven fler examined into the affair, and held the tion of passers by. A policeman also prisoner to bail in the sum of $3,000, came up, at sight of whom Smith beat hasty retreat.

Mrs. Smith was escorted to the depo by several of the gentlemen who had ome to her rescue and safely put aboard the Jeffersonville train, happy in the pos ession of her child. Smith followed to egion, taking with him $400 worth of the depot and announced his intention o going on the same train to Southpo where, he declared, he would again take ion. He was advised by a num ber of sympathisers with his wife that the sooner he made himself scarce the bette it would be for himself, which advice he had the good sense to take, and his wife was permitted to proceed without further

Lamp Explosion

Under this head, in Tuesday's SENTI-NEL, we said that Mr. Butterfield was the victim of a lamp explosion, in which he was badly burned and the house totally destroyed. Our statement was incorrect so far as the explosion was concerned Coal oil of all kinds will burn when ignited, but there are some kinds that will not explode. The gasoline used in Ward's Patent Gas Generator will not explode-in fact it is impossible for it to explode, and the experiment has been thoroughly tested. In the case connected with Mr. Butterfield it was purely an accident arising from the over filling of a lamp, the gasoline running down his clothing to the floor and to the fire until it came in contact with it and ignited. Lard, sperm, olive or any kind of non-explosive oil would have ignited under the same circumstances. The misfortune to Mr. Butterfield was caused by his carelessness, as has been the case gen-erally in accidents that have occurred by the indiscreet use of coal oil.

Academy of Music. The entertainment offered at the Academy of Music last night, was no less good than it was unique. Such performers as the Tyrolean Warb lers have never visited the city before, and thei appearance and manner is so different from those of other performers, that the audience is at once interested. Their movements upon the stage are few and slow, and their simplicity and so-lemnity during the performance are highly amusing. When it comes to singing, though, they are entirely at home. The company is compos Their voices are good, and they keep the mo inger, who has an excellent voice, is very fine The solos by Professor Turner, upon that singular instrument, the Zither, were well played; but the most extraordinary performance was a solo upon an instrument, made only of wood The concert is itself a full entertainment for ne evening, but in addition to that Prof. Rob-rt's wonderful tableaux and dissolving views are presented. These comprise every variety of land and water scape, views of the interior and ity. The tableaux are far superior to any pan-orama. The audience last night was a good one as regards numbers, but if novelty and merit are any attractions, the Academy will be crowded during each night of the week. Amusement lovers should not forget that to night the grand masquerade takes place at the Rink. A large number of persons have already registered their names, and will appear in co-tume. The indications are that this entertainment will be far ahead of those gotten up lasspring.

The most incredulous are convinced of the vir-tues of Speer's "Standard Wine Bitters" upon a trial of them. Their base is pure wine, with herbs and roots, so favorably known to the Med Druggists sell the Bitters. nov19 dsat,tu,th&wlw Holloway's Pills.

A successful physician, being challenged by ome medical martinets to describe a certain omplaint, quietly replied: "Gentlemen, it is a omplaint, quietly replied: "Gentlemen, it is a isorder which you can't cure and I can." Dr. Holloway might say the same to the faculty as egards Dyspepsis. His celebrated Pills cure it infallibly, and when all other remedies have proved utterly useless. There is no disease of Stomach or the liver, acute or chronic, slig violent, which the Pills will not amelior and relieve. Sold by all Druggists. Montgomery's Celebrated Hair Re-storer.
